Category Section Details:

The Category Section is further divided into two parts, one for women's categories and one for men's categories.

This part of the section is for women's cosmetic categories. The layout is controlled by the CSS class `catwoman`, which defines a grid structure with two columns. Background image (`catbackhome.jpeg`) covers the entire section and creates an appealing visual backdrop. It is intended to provide a visually rich and interactive way for users to navigate through various categories. Category images are displayed within this section.

The `<map>` element is used to define clickable areas (image maps) within each image. These areas link to their respective category pages.

3. Product of the Day (product1):
